Biography

My name is Tracy Madden nee Monger, a past pupil of Lourdes Hill College, leaving at the end of 1974.

My career path began with cosmetics and colour on the face, until I graduated to interior decorating and colour in the home. My father was, and still is, a renowned landscape architect. He instilled hard work and a love of creativity in me. The thought of creating something from nothing and bringing joy to others has always inspired me.

However, I had never given up my dream of being a published author. When both of my children married within three months of each other, I decided I did not want to be 90 and wonder 'what if'. Without any formal training, I closeted myself away in my office, on my Louis chair, surrounded by all of the things I loved, and wrote, wrote, wrote. Within six weeks of completing my first manuscript I had two offers of publication. The first print run sold out around Australia within 3 months. Not bad for a novice author. However, I did have an unwavering faith I would succeed.

The very mention of the word Paris has always bought a smile to my face, as I have always had a love affair with the City Of Light. So along with my vivid imagination, keen eye for detail and an intense passion for my family, food and books, these were the things I drew upon to inspire me with my writing.

On my journey with 'The Essential Ingredient – Love', I have learnt much and loved every minute.

Today I am working on my second novel, 'Love Is the Answer', and continue to take interior clients. I have learnt that as women, we can have, be, or do many things at many different ages, and we must continue to keep dreaming our dreams.
